Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increase in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Ovarian and womb troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhoea, dizziness, drowsiness, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation.

When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from surgical operations.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful mensuration, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.

The following letters cannot fail to bring hope to despairing women.

Mrs. Fred Seydel, 413 N. 54th Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I was in a very serious condition when I wrote to you for advice. I had a serious womb and ovarian trouble and I could not carry a child to maturity, and was advised that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I could not bear to think of going to the hospital, so wrote you for advice. I did as you instructed me and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and I am not only a well woman to-day, but have a beautiful baby girl six months old. I advise all sick and suffering women to write you for advice, as you have done so much for me."

Miss Ruby Mushrush, of East Chicago, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I have been a great sufferer with irregular menstruation and ovarian trouble, and about three months ago the doctor, after using the X-Ray on me, said I had an abscess on the ovaries and would have to have an operation.
My mother wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and it not only saved me from an operation but made me entirely well."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

rebuked him.
"I had a peculiar dream last night, Mary," said a Kansas City railroad man to his wife yesterday. "I dreamed I was appointed agent for our line in San Francisco at double the salary I'm now getting."

"How fine," said his wife, with a smile.
"Yes," continued the man, "and I started for San Francisco to take the place. At a small station in Kansas, where the train stopped, I saw a dog fight going on, and stepped off the car to witness it. The train went on without me, and I woke up before I could catch another."

The wife's smile changed to a look of keen disappointment. "Henry," she said with emphasis, "you have the instincts of a brute. Why didn't you stay on that train and let that dog fight alone?
You'll never get a good job if you act like that."—Kansas City Times.

BALFOUR TO GO?

Parliament's Dissolution Is Apparently
Not Far Off.

London, Nov. 24.—The recent rumors of an early dissolution of Parliament and an appeal to the country are gradually crystallizing into more definite form, and, while no official intimation has yet been forthcoming, the idea is prevailing that Premier Balfour will soon place his resignation in the hands of King Edward.

Should he do so, the liberals will be invited to form a government, Parliament will meet for a few days' session and a general election will occur early in the new year.

The political situation was so radically altered during the past week that even the government supporters no longer argue that Mr. Balfour has a sufficiently united party at his back to again meet Parliament with the object of intimating any useful legislation.

The premier's appeal to the unionists at Newcastle a week ago to unite on his fiscal policy has not met with much success.

On the contrary, Joseph Chamberlain, the most powerful private member of the unionist coalition, directly joined issue with his chief in a speech at Bristol, Tuesday, calling on unionists to rally to the support of his own more drastic fiscal proposals, which include a 50-cent tax on grain. The cleavage of the party was thus more markedly accepted.

A cabinet meeting has been called for today. This will be only the second held this fall, and the fact that there have been so few conferences between the ministers is taken as another indication of the imminence of a change of government.

On the stock exchange a definite announcement of the resignation of the cabinet is expected at any time, and the whole market yesterday was flat in consequence. The liberals are inclined to resent Mr. Balfour's resignation at the present moment.

They contend that the premier should remain in office a few weeks longer and himself dissolve a Parliament and appeal to the country. The liberals see no reason why the present opposition should put themselves to the inconvenience of forming a government in the dark without knowing what forces they will command in the new Parliament, and they object to what they designate as Mr.
Balfour's "tactical manoeuvre," whereby the liberal attack would be turned into a defense before election, and Mr. Balfour would be given a free hand to arrange with Mr. Chamberlain for concerted action against the liberal party.

"Bridge" and Heroines.

Of late the righteous have been shooting many arrows at bridge whist, and it may be doubted if it can be defended on moral grounds. Reference is made, of course, to bridge whist as played in silk plush circles. But from a purely literary point of view, much can be said in favor of the game.

Before its introduction authors and authorities were at their wits' ends when it came to involving and compromising their heroines after a fashion that would make them interesting and compel them to bestir themselves. In order to excite sympathy and the rest of the emotions the heroine has been subjected to so many temptations and subjected to them so many times that she was rapidly approaching a callous stage where she was proof against the whole lot of them. Nobody cared much whether she fell or was pushed, because, as the highly cultivated critics would express it, it was a hundred to one shot that she would come out in the last chapter with all her bones set and in good general health. You can fool the people some of the time, but even a heroine, stripped of fortune, friends and reputation, and crying aloud for assistance, can't fool them all the time. And so, in the eyes of writers, particularly writers of light and engrossing fiction, the heroine was becoming a difficult proposition.

Since the advent of "bridge," however, she can be handled without the slightest difficulty; she gives no more trouble than a forgotten sin. It is only necessary to endow her with fatal beauty, invite her to a select and fashionable house party on the Hudson, or in Hertfordshire, Sussex, Westphalia, Biddings, S. W., persuade her to lose $300 or $5-000 at "bridge"—according to the size of the plot—and force her to borrow of the wrong man. That will fix her so that she can't swim out for 220 pages, and the public will sit up nights to read her fate.

Now that bridge whist is in full swing, a novel can be evolved with one hand, and almost everybody is sending two or more to market for the holidays.
—Providence Journal.

Checkmates the Joker.

M. D. George, who has a blacksmith shop on Grand avenue, near East Morrison street, has been the object of a number of practical jokes on the part of his friends. When they were thirsty and wanted something to drink they had been in the habit of pawing his leather apron at a saloon down street for 40 to 50 cents, and he had as often redem-ed it good-naturedly, but the other day he purchased a new apron for $3. It disappeared during the noon hour, and suspecting where it had gone he dropped down to the saloon, where he saw it behind the bar.

"Want to buy a good apron?" asked the bartender.

"No, I have a new one," replied Mr.
George.

"Better buy this one," continued the bartender.

"No, that apron is mine, anyway," replied George.

"There is 70 cents due on it," said the
bartender.

"Yes, it was stolen and brought here.
I will give you thirty minutes to get it back to my shop, and if it is not there then I shall have you arrested for taking stolen property," said George.

The bartender eyed the blacksmith to take it away but he would not. Within the specified time the apron was back at the shop, and the bartender is after the man who pawned it.—Portland Oregonian.

Consideration for the Horse.
"Would you mind walking the other way and not passing the horse?" said a cabman with exaggerated politeness to the fat lady who had just paid the minimum fare. "Why?" she inquired.
"Because if 'o sees wot 'e's been carrying for a shilling 'ell 'ave a 'ibe' was the freeing answer.—London Globe.
